Annual Meeting Held at the Spectacular Desert Botanical Garden

Members and guests of the Arizona Trail Association gathered on Saturday, February 1, 2003 for the organization's 9th Annual Meeting at the beautiful new Dorrance Hall in the center of the stunning outdoor plant exhibits that have made the Desert Botanical Garden famous worldwide. More than 140 people attended the members' meeting and recognition luncheon, which featured special presentations by Arizona Trail runner Brian Stark and keynote speaker, Sam Campana, executive director of Audubon Arizona.

Many agency representatives and community leaders were also in attendance, including the Mayor of Mesa, Keno Hawker, and many ATA members, volunteers and friends traveled from a wide array of statewide locations to attend the successful event.

Larry Snead, the Association's Chief Trail Steward, presented a report on the many new trail construction and trail maintenance activities that took place over the past year, and he recognized the many Segment Stewards and volunteers who have worked so hard to accomplish so much. His report included a running tally of the miles to be constructed in trail segments dispersed throughout the state, and the final total added up to only 114 more miles to go for completion.

New ATA Executive Director, Denise Meridith, was welcomed and introduced to the attendees, and an exciting list of upcoming events, programs, and membership activities were announced for the upcoming months. One of the most special announcements was the Phelps Dodge Corporation's donation of a beautiful new office space for ATA's Executive Director in their new high rise headquarters building located at 1 North Central Avenue in the heart of downtown Phoenix.

During the Recognition Luncheon attendees were treated to an inspiring slide presentation that chronicled trail runner Brian Stark's 39-day journey as he encountered the many backcountry terrain and weather challenges found along the route of the Arizona Trail. Brian works for Arizona State Parks at Kartchner Caverns in southeastern Arizona, and he has also successfully completed a 4,800-mile run on the American Discovery Trail, which runs sea-to-sea from Delaware to California.

Former Scottsdale Mayor, Sam Campana, who is now the new statewide executive director for Audubon Arizona, gave a passionate presentation as keynote speaker on the importance of conserving Arizona's outdoor environments that are so critical to preserving the habitat for our state's aviary wildlife. She commended the ATA for our efforts to help promote environmental education and heighten the awareness of Arizona Trail visitors to the importance preserving our state's natural landscapes.

The Desert Botanical Garden was a very appropriate setting for the meeting because the Garden is a significant partner with the ATA in the development of our signature Arizona Trail flora project. The Garden's botanists are collecting plant specimens that are found border-to-border along the route of the Arizona Trail. This plant collection will be scientifically cataloged and permanently housed in the Garden's Herbarium. Wendy Hodgson, the Garden's Arizona Trail project coordinator, conducted special tours of an Arizona Trail exhibit in the Herbarium for meeting attendees. This unique flora collection will be the foundation for a future field guidebook with color photographs featuring the flora and diverse plant communities that can be observed along the entire corridor of the Arizona Trail.

Photographic highlights of some of the activities and awards that were presented at the ATA Annual Meeting are featured on this and other pages in this newsletter, as well as the complete list of those who were recognized for their outstanding support.

The Arizona Trail: Linking People and Landscapes

by Denise Meridith*

I am proud to be the new Executive Director of the Arizona Trail Association (ATA). The Arizona Trail is 790 miles of magnificent and unique landscapes spanning seven ecosystems stretching from stately Ponderosa pines to statuesque Saguaros. The ATA is a partnership, bringing Federal, state and local governments, nonprofit organizations, private enterprises and interested individuals together to plan, build and maintain the trail.

I spent 29 years promoting recreation and protecting our environment during my career with the US Bureau of Land Management. So I often get asked since my retirement in June 2002, why I am not hanging out on the beach? Why I accepted the position of ATA Executive Director? The answer I give will also serve as the theme of my tenure with ATA and what I think will entice you to also get involved:

Great Mission

Great People

Great Challenges

Great Mission

The mission is to complete and, as importantly, maintain the Trail. To date 600 of the 790 miles of the Arizona Trail have been completed. The trail goes from Utah to Mexico and is open to hikers, mountain bikers, equestrians, cross-country skiers and other enthusiasts of non-motorized forms of outdoor recreation. It is an invaluable asset for residents of and visitors to Arizona.

Great People

The Arizona Trail is blessed with a dedicated and enthusiastic group of board members, trail stewards and volunteers, who do everything from building trailheads to building websites. I hope to reach out to a whole new audience of visitors and volunteers to protect this valuable resource we are creating.

Great Challenges

Behind every good deed are many great challenges. Building and maintaining 790 miles of trail is not a "walk in the park." First of all, we are trying to preserve open space in the face of growing, and often necessary economic development, in one of the fastest growing states in the US. This will take cooperation and collaboration among our numerous government, nonprofit, business and individual partners. Seeking a National Scenic Trail designation is one of the goals which would give our efforts nationwide and permanent recognition.

Secondly, we must educate the public about the socio-economical and health benefits of the types of outdoor recreation associated with the Arizona Trail. Tourism is the second most important industry in Arizona; the opportunities for hiking, biking, riding and other activities from the Grand Canyon to the Santa Ritas along the Arizona Trail will play an important part in that industry. Obesity, diabetes, high blood pressure and heart disease are plaguing Arizonans; use of the Trail can be an important part of a prevention or treatment regimen.

Finally, we must attract, excite and involve a young and diverse group of new trail users, stewards and volunteers. We will step up efforts to involve schools, churches, nonprofit youth groups and families in educational and physical activities involving the Arizona Trail.

This year, we hope you will take advantage of one of the many ways you can enjoy this important landmark in Arizona. There will be a variety of membership options: you can fund a foot or adopt a mile of the Arizona Trail. You can volunteer yourself or volunteer to direct other volunteers in actually building the trail. Your company can donate resources or services to design and construct new trailheads or create and conduct educational programs about the Trail. We will be having a series of friend/fundraising events down the length of the trail during the months ahead. Get involved and have fun.

Some Annual Meeting Highlights

1. Executive Director Denise Meridith at the podium, welcoming ATA members and guests to the Annual Meeting held at the Desert Botanical Garden in Phoenix.

2. More than 140 ATA members, guests, agency and elected officials, and Segment Stewards gathered together at the Annual Meeting.

3. Brian Stark, Arizona Trail runner and a featured speaker at the Annual Meeting, shows the audience his light-weight backpack he used during his fascinating presentation about the 39-day adventure he described in his border-to-border journey in 2001.

4. Sam Campana, executive director of Audubon Arizona, delivers her passionate presentation highlighting the importance of protecting our environment, preserving our state's wild and open spaces, and protecting the fragile habitat for Arizona's birds and other wild creatures.

5. Bill Fisk, right, receives an award from ATA president, Jan Hancock, for his many years of assisting the Association by setting up our ATA exhibit at trade shows and special events. Bill is the publisher of Arizona Outdoor Journal, a popular publication featuring special outdoor events & sporting activities.

6. Joanna Scruggs, manager of the popular Arizona Public Lands Information Center, is presented a special plaque of appreciation from Chief Trail Steward, Larry Snead. Joanna and her staff sell all of the Arizona Trail merchandise and provide ATA maps and information, as well as helpful assistance about other Arizona outdoor activities to thousands of Arizona residents and visitors to our state.

7. Marie and Denny Haywood, center and right, accept a plaque of special recognition for their outstanding support of the ATA as Segment Stewards and their volunteer work on many other segments of the Arizona Trail as specialized mule packers. Their well-trained mules carry heavy trail building tools, equipment, and supplies to volunteers in wilderness and extremely remote areas of the Arizona Trail.

8. Dawson Henderson, left, receives an ATA Certificate of Appreciation from trail founder, Dale Shewalter, for his more than 15 years of support and dedication to the Arizona Trail project, including nine years of creativity and expertise in the development and maintenance of the Association's award-winning website.

Phelps Dodge Corporation Donates Office Space for ATA's Executive Director

First a Tools Trailer, then a Ford Bronco, and now a beautiful corporate office on the 11th floor of the state's newest high-rise headquarters building in downtown Phoenix...this is a mere glimpse of the enormous magnitude of support that has been so graciously donated to our organization by the Phelps Dodge Corporation.

And the support doesn't stop there...a large group of volunteers who are Phelps Dodge employees, named the "Phelps Helps" crew, has been out actually building on the Trail as well, and the Phelps Dodge mining operations in the Globe/Miami area are donating hours of special assistance in grinding and polishing our trails tools to keep them sharp for all of our volunteer crews. Every time we turn around, Phelps Dodge is there to fill the gaps for some very important needs, and we couldn't be more thankful.

We all need to express our special appreciation to this outstanding corporation for their continued strong support of the Arizona Trail project and our organization. Special recognition should also be extended to Lyn Harry White, a member of the Phelps Dodge corporate management team and a member of our ATA Board of Directors, who has been significantly instrumental in gaining this outstanding corporate support. The ATA has never had a place we could call "home" for the operations of our organization, and this special contribution of office space for our new Executive Director could not have come at a more appropriate, and truly needed, time.

National Scenic Trails Conference

Representatives from trails organizations throughout the nation gathered together in Arkansas last fall to discuss goals and objectives for the eight National Scenic Trails in America. ATA sent Larry Snead to the conference to meet key leaders and learn more about the nomination process in Congress for the Arizona Trail to become the ninth long-distance trail to achieve this prestigious designation.

Equestrian Outing at Picketpost

The Superstition Horsemen's Association, based in Apache Junction, gathered together at the newly opened Picketpost Trailhead for their traditional annual Christmas ride. More than 80 riders participated, and they somehow found the space for 29 horse trailers and vehicles in the parking areas for the event! They rode the newly completed sections of the Arizona Trail leading north out of Picketpost Trailhead.

Arizona Trail GPS Project Launched

The full length of the Arizona Trail is now being GPS'ed through a unique partnership between Garmin, Wide World of Maps, BLM and ATA volunteers. The information gathered will be placed on BLM maps available to purchase at the Arizona Public Lands Information Center in Phoenix. The data collected also will be available for use by several other mapping programs.

Garmin and Wide World of Maps got the project started with six loaner units that would collect the data in a format that could be downloaded into BLM's mapping software.

Project Manager for BLM is GIS Specialist, Dave Wilson. Project Manager for

ATA is Dave Babcock, a software engineer and active ATA volunteer.

ATA board member, Phyllis Ralley is also active in the project and will give leadership to getting the data collected onto maps.

Three of the loaner units have been returned and ATA has purchased three of the GPS units to complete the project. August 1st is the current projected completion date depending on weather and fire danger closures. ATA volunteers started collecting the data in late December and to date have GPS'ed over 161 miles.

For more information contact Dave Babcock at dbabcock7@hotmail.com.

Youth Corps of Southern Arizona Builds a Fantastic Trail

When a section of the Arizona Trail requires the expertise of a highly experienced, skilled and heavily equipped trail crew, our land management partners and the ATA will recruit professional assistance to supplement the work of our own volunteers. Sometimes the safety of volunteers can be a concern in building an unusually difficult trail section, and such was the case of “The Big Hill” located south of the Gila River in Pinal County.

The Youth Corps of Southern Arizona (YCOSA) is a specialized team of extremely talented and very dedicated group of young, trained trail construction experts who accepted the challenge of building a section of the Arizona Trail on an extremely slippery and rock-strewn slope to the peak of a very high hill in Pinal County. Once on top of the hill, the views to the surrounding landscapes take your breath away, but getting there safely was a very big challenge.

Jeff Pappas coordinated the project for the ATA under the direction of our Chief Trail Steward, Larry Snead, and the YCOSA crew leaders, Kamilla Hoban and Greg Seabloom, provided first-class trail building knowledge and superior leadership for the youth involved in the project. YCOSA Trail Consultant, Jason Kirby, provided technical advice and was the liaison between Jeff Pappas and the ATA. The crew worked for four weeks to build this exceptionally challenging two-mile uphill section of the Arizona Trail, and donated the last week of trail building labor to the ATA at no charge. A significant grant from the Tucson headquarters of the National Park Service’s Rivers, Trails and Conservation Assistance program funded the first three weeks of construction activities.

ATA volunteer Chuck Horner, ATA’s very experienced trail layout planner (also known as our “trail guru”) established the trail design and flagging prior to the project to get the project off to a great start. Both Chuck and another talented ATA trail planner/builder volunteer, Merle Parmer, led the efforts to construct the approach section of the trail to the base of “The Big Hill.” Members of the successful YCOSA crew were Amanda Benton, Pablo de la Cruz, Sophia Fabri, James Fox, Forrest Hinkson, Clair Ingalsbe, Sara Lilegard, Tyler Michaelis, Patrick Nelson, Jennie Rosenblit, and Marielle Traiman. The ATA would also like to recognize YCOSA staff members William Drabkin, Mallory Marquet and Chris Craig for organizing and scheduling this project with the ATA.

Thanks to everyone involved for completing this super new section of the Arizona Trail!

Heather Southworth, Josh Sanders and Laddie Cox dig in on the Big Hill

Westcliffe Publishing Releases New Book on Mountain Biking the Arizona Trail

Hot off the press! “Biking the Arizona Trail” is a thoroughly entertaining book chronicling the mountain biking experiences of two adventurous women who struck out on the Arizona Trail at the Utah border in September 2001. The new book has just been received at many bookstores in Arizona and retails for $14.95.

Fondly known as the “Sheilamonsters,” Andrea Lankford, the book’s author, and Beth Overton, who were both Flagstaff residents when they started their border-to-border mountain bike excursion, left the Utah border trailhead with high expectations for a tame ride, and quickly discovered the perils of cactus spines in their bike tires and steep grades that demanded getting off of their bikes to get in and out of some rugged canyon country. Nevertheless, they finally made it to the Mexico border, often taking alternate routes to avoid some of the trail areas that are incomplete, in wilderness areas, or too challenging for one reason or another.

Expect a good read...and some wonderful humor throughout the narrative, as well as some great maps, photos and very detailed descriptions of the trail passages they explored along the way.

To order this publication from the ATA or our partnership organization, the Arizona Public Lands Information Center, call 602-417-9300, or send an e-mail to: az\_plic@blm.gov The Center has just received a large shipment of these books and will try to maintain a good supply in stock for your orders.

Ripsey Segment - Pinal County

We had an incredible season this fall on the Ripsey Segment, with events held on November 16th/17th and 23rd/24th. These events were held in conjunction with the Youth Corps of Southern Arizona (YCOSA), who were hired by ATA to build the affectionately named "Big Hill." YCOSA worked about a month on the Big Hill and transformed a beautiful trail out of this very rugged hillside.

We would like to thank YCOSA for their commendable efforts in completing the Big Hill and ATA members Larry Snead, Jeff Pappas, Chuck Horner and Merle Parmer for coordinating the YCOSA efforts. In addition, Chuck Horner's mid-week work crew helped tremendously by cutting in tread and clearing the mile of trail between the YCOSA basecamp and the Big Hill, prior to the YCOSA event. I would also like to thank the following people who helped with our November work events including: Lani Good, Ben Good, Jim Harrison, Mike Hedrick, Amanda Luecker, David Pendergrass, Josh Sanders, Jamie Sanders, Heather Southworth, Heath Therrien, Jessica Therrien, Fred Nelson (along with 3 Boy Scouts) and Carrie Westhoff.

Everyone really pulled together to work on the most difficult section of the Ripsey Segment. These efforts truly exemplify the spirit of the Arizona Trail. Please look at the events calendar to see upcoming events in January, February & March, as we move even closer to completing the Ripsey Segment.

Boulders Segment – Pinal County November 23 -24, 2002

If you weren't there then you missed out on a terrific weekend. Besides trail construction, the weekend included giveaways and libations from New Belgium Brewing Company, Clif Bar energy bars, awesome trail riding, Saturday night dinner, Arizona Trail

Trivia game, great company around the campfire, and perfect weather. You just can't ask for more than that! And if you've never met Jeremy Walker with New Belgium Brewing Company you really should sometime. He's full of all kinds of information, some useful, some interesting, and some just plain odd!

We constructed a high quality stretch of trail on what appears to be the only rocking hillside on this segment of the Arizona Trail. Most of the participants were new to trail construction, but they learned quickly and did excellent work. Many thanks to all the volunteers who came out that weekend: Chuck King, Jim Hunton, Tyler Hunton Mary Halfmann, Anthony Ohotto and Peter Hogan with the Mountain Bike Association of Arizona; Doug Marsh, Russ Becker, Laddie Cox, and Merle Parmer with the Arizona Trail Association; and Jeremy Walker (New Belgium Brewing Company) and his friend Chris Giles. We have several more work events scheduled for this winter and spring so don't miss out next time. Jeremy will be back with more trivia and more beverages! Thank You New Belgium Brewing Company, Clif Bar, Bike Barn and the Mountain Bike Association of Arizona for their sponsorship and support, and also to Doug Marsh who helped me put together the fine meal on Saturday night!!

North of the Gila

The Arizona Trail Association has had a lot of difficulty identifying where to place the trail north of the Gila River to link to the White Canyon and the Alamo Passage. One day, not too long ago, a working cowboy in the area spotted some hikers out "in the middle of the desert." He rode up and asked them what they were doing out there and they said, "We are hiking The Arizona Trail."

"There's no trail here," replied the cowboy. "There will be!" said the hikers.

This so intrigued cowboy George Hunt that he contacted the ATA and offered to help identify a trail corridor. He is seen here with Merle Parmer and Dave Hicks in a scouting expedition to do just that!

Reavis Trail Canyon

On January 7th, Terry Sario, Cindy Peck of the Forest Service, Dick Wertz, Larry Snead, David Babcock, Lisa and Cheryl hiked the Reavis Trail Canyon in order to look for camping sites for the Sierra Club event Feb 2-8th. We also looked at the work area where the event will concentrate on rerouting part of the trail in the switchback area.

On January 24-26th, there was an emergency work event to brush the lower portion of the trail in order for pack animals to get through with food and supplies for the Sierra Club people.

Trail Founder Dale Shewalter Pens a Poem Symbolizing the Arizona Trail

If you've ever had the pleasure of experiencing the Arizona Trail in the company of its founder, Dale Shewalter, you know that he comes equipped with a harmonica that magically appears around the campfire after a day out on the trail, and his tunes become meshed with lots of great stories about the history of our state and Dale's unequalled reverence for our magnificent backcountry landscapes.

At the ATA Annual Meeting on February 1st, Dale surprised the attendees with a moving poem he had written just for the occasion, and we thought everyone would like to have a copy of his poem, which is simply titled, "The Arizona Trail."

The Arizona Trail

*In the land of Arizona
Through desert heat or snow
Winds a trail for folks to follow
From Utah to Old Mexico.*

*It's the Arizona Trail
A path through the great Southwest
A diverse track through wood and stone
Your spirit it will test.*

*Some will push and pedal
And some will hike or run
Others will ride their horse or mule
What else could be more fun?*

*Oh, sure, you'll sweat and blister
You'll feel the miles each day
You'll shiver at the loneliness
Your feet and seat will pay.*

*But you'll see moonlight on the borderlands
You'll see stars on the Mogollon
You'll feel the warmth of winter sun
And be thrilled straight through to bone.*

*The aches and pains will fade away
You'll feel renewed and whole
You'll never be the same again
With Arizona in your soul.*

*Along the Arizona Trail
A reverence and peace you'll know Through deserts, canyons and mountains

Phoenix Chamber of Commerce Hosts ATA Reception

A large group of community leaders gathered together on January 29, 2003, to participate in a Welcome Reception for our new Executive Director, Denise Meridith, and the ATA's Advisory Council members. The reception was held at the spacious Greater Phoenix Chamber of Commerce's conference center at the top of Bank One's high-rise building in downtown Phoenix.

Many corporate leaders, elected officials, media personalities and land management agency partners joined a group of ATA volunteers and members of the ATA Board of Directors to honor our new Executive Director and the new members of the Advisory Council.

Valeria Manning, Executive Director of the Greater Phoenix Chamber, introduced Denise to the more than 70 attendees, many of whom knew Denise well and had worked with her on a number of state and community projects over the past years. The attendees included representatives from Senator John McCain's office, and Representative John Shadegg and Ed Pastor's offices, as well as a number of Arizona State Legislators and Mayors representing several Arizona communities. People traveled from throughout the Valley and the state to attend the function.

Two special plaques of appreciation were presented to representatives of the Phelps Dodge Corporation and the Nina Mason Pulliam Charitable Trust during the event, recognizing them for their outstanding support of the Arizona Trail Association.

The theme of the event was centered around outdoor camping gear and campfire food, including everything from very popular Power Bars to dehydrated backpacking treats from REI, and some delicious "fresh-from-the campfire" blackberry cobbler, all of which provided a fun and creative atmosphere for the special group of attendees.

The ATA extends its appreciation to Valerie Manning and the Greater Phoenix Chamber of Commerce associates for the very gracious reception at their headquarters offices, and for helping our organization welcome our new Executive Director to our growing number of ATA community supporters.
